A SUPPLICATION. Two hands upon the breast, And labor's dene; Two pale feet crossed in rest-The race is run;

Two eyes with coin weights abut, And all tears coase: Two lips where grief is mute, Anger at peace.
So pray we sometimes mourning our lot;
God in his kindness answereth not.
Two hands to work and rest,

Aye, for his praise;" Two feet that never rest Walking his ways; Two eyes that look above Still through all tears; Two lips that breathed but love, rmore fears. So we pray afterward, low at our knees; those erring prayers; Father, hear thes -Dinah Maria Muloch. A Perpetual Fire.

In the Peninsula of Abeheron, in the Province of Schirwan, formerly belonging to Persia, but now a part of Russia, there is found a perpetual, or, what the natives call, an eternal fire, which is known to have been burning over 2,000 years. It rises with a constant flame from an irregular orifice of about 12 feet in depth and 120 feet in width. The flame rises to a height of 6 or 8 feet, unattended with smoke or disagreeable smell, waving back and forth with the wind, like a field of golden grain.-St. Louis Republic.

A curious Berwickshire (Eng.) legend attributes the introduction of potatoes into cotland to that famous Wizard of the North Sir Michael Scott, and according to the story Michael and the devil, being in partnership, took the lease of a farm on the Mertoun estate called the "Whiteho Michael was to manage the farm, the devil nanage the capital. The produce was to e divided as follows: The first year Mi hael was to have all that grew above the ground, and the devil all that grew below; se second year the shares were to be dirided in just the opposite way. His satunic majesty, as one might suppose, was badly beaten in his bargain, for Sir Michael, with true Scottish foresight, wed all the land to wheat the first year, and planted it all in potatoes on the second, the poor devil got nothing for his share out wheat stubble and potato tops. In ite of this legend, however, we must give Sir Walter Raleigh credit for introducing the potato into the British Isles. The first notate cultivators of England fell into the natural error of eating the small green balls on the vines instead of the tuber .-St. Louis Republic.

The Editor of Harper's Weekly.

George William Curtis wears curly gray mutton chop side whiskers, but shaves his upper lip, dresses in dusty black and lives on Staten Island. He uses a pincenez, which does not prevent his being a brilliant speaker. His polished periods are in-toned in a voice bell like in its clearness, and with a fluency that seems to cost the speaker no effort whatever. His conversation has a scholarly flavor and is full of apt illustration drawn from a long experience of books and politics, while his speeches may be described as the perfection of inllectual argument, clothed in the most fluished language. He has been literary adviser of the house of Harper for close on thirty years, refused the English mission from Hayes and acknowledges to six and sixty. He is a Rhode Islander by birth. He is also chancellor of the New York university. He has been described as an un-cerstudy for an angel —Frank Leslie's.

—Beston Globa. WHEN WOMEN WERE SCARCE.

Senator's Story of the Reception Give the First Woman in California. When Stewart, the student, went to California the women were left at home. The senator occasionally relapses into reminiscences. One of the best stories he tells is of the arrival of the first woman in the mining camp. The boys had toiled with pan and rocker at Washoe for three years years without so much as a glimpse of a sunbonnet. Late of an afternoon a mighty shout was heard. The cry was taken up and repeated until it rang from end to end of the gulches: "Petticoats! Petticoats!" Down went the picks and shovels. The red shirted miners swarmed up the hillsides. An emigrant wagon, "all the way from Pike," was slowly moving along to a camping place. A lone "Puke" sat on the seat in front. The lucky miner who had rnised the shout told how he had seen a live woman sitting beside a man when the wagon first hove in sight. But as soon as he gave notice by the warning cry she had dodged back out of sight beneath the canvas cover. Plied with questions by the less fortunate, the miner described in glowing detail how the woman was dressed and what she looked like. That evening, while the alices of pork were sizzling and the coffee pots were bubbling, the miners discussed the great The more they talked the more they felt that they must see a woman. Somebody proposed a purse and a visit to the emigrant's camp. One after another chipped in There was $3,000 in golf dust when the last contribution was turned in. Then forming in line and looking very solemn, just as they did when they marched in to see "The Luck of Roaring Camp," these miners started for the wagon of the Missourian.

By a unanimous vote "Bill" Stewart had been selected for spokesman. He walked at the head of the procession and carried the bag of gold dust. As the column approached within sight of the little camp the leaders saw a flutter of drapery at the front of an improvised tent. Then the flap was hastily drawn, and as the miners approached they saw only the man of the outfit, and he gazed rather apprehensively at the array.

A big ring was formed; Stewart advanced to the center. He explained to the traveler that the boys meant no harm to him or his; but it had been three years since some of them had seen a woman. In fact, until the arrival that afternoon the gulches of Washoe had never been honored with the presence of petticoats. The boys had deemed the occasion worthy of recogni-tion. They had made up, not exactly a jackpot, but a purse, which he was commissioned to present to the lady.

The Missourian listened. As the little speech neared the climax he grinned.

When Stewart held up the buckskin bag the emigrant's eyes grew big. He turned and started with alacrity for the tent he said, "come out and show yourself. The boys don't mean to hurt ye. They've got somethin' fur ye."

Leading the frightened woman by the hand the Missourian returned to where That the change of time card on the Santa Fe Route has brought about the following pleasant features for the Wichita trade, viz: for the tent. As she disappeared there went up a shout which made the welkin ring and coyotes hunt their holes for miles Decorating Cellings and Windows. When the ceiling is to be papered it is desirable to choose a closely patterned paper, as the cracks and inequalities which all ceilings nowadays seem to possess are then much less apparent. A cornice should he a connecting link of color between the wall paper and the ceiling, but the age design to be met with is so bad that it is better to accentuate it as little as possi

In the matter of windows one's sense of proportion causes a feeling of against the unbroken expanse of glass to be met with in many modern houses. This difficulty may be dealt with in many ways for instance, unglazed casements divided up into four or five inch squares and fixed up as shutters produce the desired effect. or a shelf crossing the window, hung with transparent curtains falling below, serves to break the monotony, besides supplying a place where flowers are sure to look happy.-Ethel Johnson in Woman's World.

Where to Spend an Afternoon A few hours can be pleasantly and per haps profitably spent in the china and glass departments of stores by those who care for fine china. There is a bewildering assortment of colors and designs to choose from, and the scale of prices would seem to make it possible for people whose means are quite moderate to have a well appointland, China and Japan are all represented in the stock. Dealers say the demand for especially by the citizens of Wichita. If you are going east or west go via the popular to Ransas City, also to Topeka ichison and St. Joseph.

A Magnetic Separaler.

Among the numerous magnetic sepa rators one of the most remarkable is that for the extraction of iron from the sea sand. It is state I that ordinary sea sand contains from 5 to 7 per cent. of iron, enough to give a large excess over cost of extraction. The macnine consists of a cylinder, whose surface is composed of electro-magnets, reve ving on the inside of an endless canvas belt. The sand is fed to the belt, and a spray of water sepa rates the particles, the iron being retained by the power ul electro-magnets and carried off on the belt to a recepta cle at the other end, while the sand falls into the trough below.-Exchange.
